

Christopher Pen wins First 'Nudi Festival' UW Photography Contest

The underwater photography contest jointly organized by Deepblu and scubashooters.net concluded with a bang after receiving over 1500 entries.

TAIPEI, 10 May 2017 – After a marathon deliberation that lasted several days, a professional judge panel of seven seasoned professional photographers officially announced the winner of the 'Nudi Festival', the underwater photography contest that solicited the best nudibranch macro photography from participants.

"It was exceptionally hard to choose from so many excellent images," said lead judge Henry Jager, "but we finally made a decision. We consider this contest a terrific success not only in terms of numbers of entries and participants, but also in terms of quality of the entries."

Deepblu underwater photographers Christopher Pen, Ace Wu, Claudio Ceresi, chandy, and nicdives all took home a fashionable COSMIQ+ Dive Computer and other prizes sponsored by Deepblu. A Romanian called Dragos Dumitrescu, also received a COSMIQ+ after winning the popular vote on Deepblu with an exquisite detail of smiling face on a nudibranch's back. All winning entries are on display on the Nudi Festival contest page at Deepblu.

The contest, which lasted for 2 months, was jointly organized by Deepblu, the fastest-growing social network for divers and ocean enthusiasts, and scubashooters.net, the popular underwater photography community. The contest received 1582 entries and was widely praised for its exceptionally high-quality entries.

Marino Palla, owner of scubashooters.net said that "the results of this Nudi Festival prove that scubashooters.net and Deepblu can easily compete with well-established and larger UW photo contests. Scubashooters.net and Deepblu are a perfect match in the diving industry."

James Tsuei, CEO of Deepblu was also pleased with the outcome. "We are honored to work together a partner as prominent as Scubashooters and I'm confident that this outcome shows that Deepblu is a quickly maturing community of divers and ocean enthusiasts.";
